Missionaries Will Speak at Church

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard G. Bolton, missionaries for more than 25 years to Burma, southwest China, and Tibet, will be guest speakers at the Full Gospel Tabernacle, Wednesday, April 5, the Rev. Harry M. Donley, pastor, announced today. The Boltons will tell of some of their experiences among the tribes of Burma and China and of present conditions in China.

The Boltons returned to the states from China last November. They are under appointment of the Foreign Missions Department of the Assemblies of God. Bolton, who was born in England, and received his call to the mission field while wounded and passed in France during World War I, serving in the Royal Air Force, first sailed for China in September, 1924. Mrs. Bolton had then been in China for more than five years working about the Lisu tribe in southwest China.

During World War 2 the Boltons worked along the famous Burma Road. In 1946 they went by road across China from Shanghai to the Burma border. They worked among the lepers in the leper colonies around Kunming.

Just prior to Mr. and Mrs. Bolton's return to the states they made a 1,077-mile trip from Kunming, China into Lisu territory, traveling six days by car and more than 20 days by horses, part of the time as a part of a Tibetan tea caravan. Returning over the Burma Road they narrowly escaped falling into the hands of bandits on the mountains. A cloud protected them.

The Rev. Mr. Donley extends a cordial invitation to the public to hear these pioneer missionaries to Burma and China tell of their experiences in the wilds, and of recent developments in East Asia. The service begins at 7:45 p. m.

Pike Gives Water Color Demonstration

John Pike, of Woodstock, known for his water color illustrations in Collier's and other magazines, gave a water color demonstration at A. A. Champanier's Saxton Fells School of Art in this city Thursday.

The management of the school announced that the illustrator will make other visits to the school for similar demonstrations. Various phases of water color technique were demonstrated and the artist donated the painting to the students. The scene was one in the Catskill Mountains on a rainy day and was executed from memory.

Artist Champanier announced that he plans to have similar demonstrations by other Woodstock artists. The school now has six studios, he said, and has acquired Clarence J. McCarthy of Woodstock as a permanent instructor in advertising art.

It is planned to hold outdoor classes two mornings a week in the near future, the instructor said.

Good defensive play often requires teamwork. No matter how well you lay your plans, if they require the cooperation of your partner, and he fails to follow your line of thought, the plans go astray.

North's natural opening against the four-spade contract on today's hand was the ten of hearts, the top of his partner's suit. South went up with the ace and immediately led the seven of spades to stop the declarer from getting a heart ruff. West won this trick in dummy and led the king of clubs. When South did not place the ace, declarer trumped with the four of spades.

Now West ran off six spade tricks, and this left him with the king and eight of hearts and the eight and deuce of diamonds. Dummy was left with the king, Jack and ten of diamonds and the queen of clubs. Most South players would hold as this one did.

the queen-jack of hearts and ace-queen of diamonds. So all the declarer had to do was to cash the king of hearts and throw South in the lead with the jack of hearts. South cashed the ace of diamonds but had to concede the last trick to dummy's king of diamonds.

If South had borne down to the queen, Jack and a small heart and the bare ace of diamonds, declarer would have thrown him in with the ace of diamonds and forced him to lead hearts. West would win with the king and take the last two tricks in dummy with the king-ten of diamonds.

However, if South received partnership cooperation on this hand, it would have been a different story. North would not have discarded his hearts. He would have hung on to the nine and four of hearts for dear life, together with the nine of diamonds and ace of clubs. This would have allowed South to discard the jack of hearts, keeping the queen-six of hearts and ace-queen of diamonds. Then if declarer played the king of hearts, South could throw away the queen and keep the six, and when declarer played his last heart North would win it with the nine. This would give North and South the last three tricks, which, with the heart ace won on the first trick, would defeat the contract.

Central Hudson Will Reduce Gas Rates by $347,000

The Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation announced today that it has filed new gas rates with the New York State Public Service Commission, which will result in over-all savings to its gas customers of $347,000 annually. The reduction amounts to 12.8 per cent of the company's total annual gas revenue at present gas rates. It will take effect as soon as natural gas is delivered to customers late this summer.

The new rates provide a saving of from seven to eight per cent for customers using smaller amounts of gas to approximately 30 per cent for those who use gas for househeating. Gas househeating customers will receive the greatest reduction because they received by far the greatest proportionate increases when the company increased its gas rates during the last three years.

Under the new rates, the cost of gas cooking and gas water heating will be 18 per cent more than in 1939 and the cost of househeating will be 25 per cent more. These costs compare with a general increase in cost of living since 1939 of approximately 70 per cent (U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics).

Commenting on the new rates, President Ernest R. Acker of the Central Hudson System, said: "The substitution of natural gas for manufactured gas will produce savings in the cost of operating our gas department. The company, which is now earning a very inadequate return on the investment in its gas business, is retaining part of these savings and is passing on the rest to its customers."

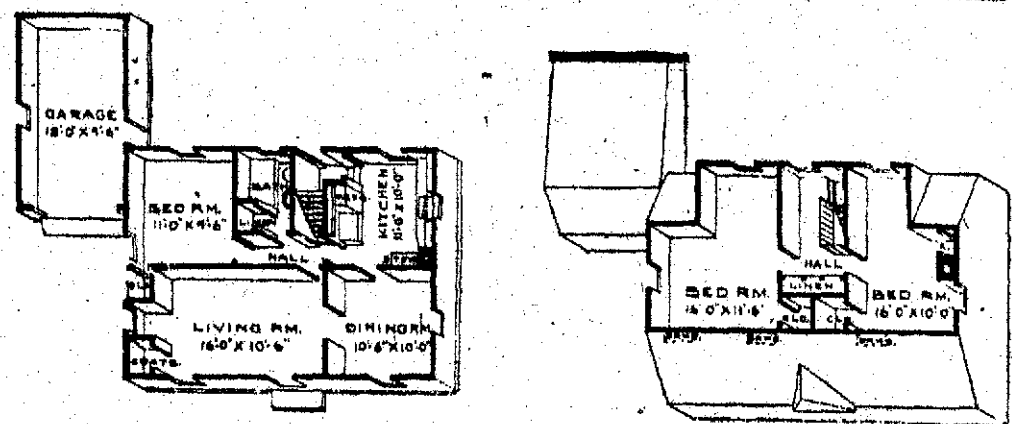

"The new rates are designed to stimulate gas sales. It is our hope that this growth will not only increase the earnings of our gas department but also permit eventual further reductions in gas rates."

Will Test Rent Action
New York, April 1 (AP)—An action aimed at blocking application of New York state's new rent-control law will be aired before a three-judge court April 10. Federal Judge Gregory F. Noonan yesterday called the special panel to determine whether the state should be restrained from enforcing the new law until its constitutionality has been tested by the courts. The suit seeks to block the scheduled transfer to the state on May 1 of the rent control powers now exercised in the state by the federal housing expediter.

More Rain Planes
New York, April 1 (AP)—Three radar-equipped DC-3 planes today were at the disposal of New York city's rainmakers, who previously have had only a couple of police department amphibian planes in which to hunt clouds. The two-engine DC-3s were offered to the city at no extra cost yesterday by the Sperry Corporation. City officials accepted the offer—with thanks. Water Commissioner Stephen J. Carney said the DC-3s would be able to operate in the turbulent weather that rainmakers like when the smaller police department planes would be grounded.

Hospital Contract
Albany, N. Y., April 1 (AP)—State contracts totaling $3,747,834 have been awarded for construction of a building for "disturbed" patients at Middletown. Homeopathic Hospital. The construction is part of Governor Dewey's program to increase the capacity of the state's mental institutions.

THE HARRISVILLE

This house, "The Harrisville," will cost more to build than a wooden dwelling of the same size but in the long run the difference will be offset by the saving in maintenance expense. A long wind dormer runs across the back of the structure, and by adding two small dormers at the front the attic space can be converted into two additional rooms.

Brick House Is Always Dignified and Solid

'The Harrisville' Is an Example of One That Can Be Erected at Moderate Cost—Is Compact and Allows Later Additions

A brick house, small or large, is a compactly dignified and solid—both admirable qualities in a home. Many home builders prefer to start small with a well-built house of lasting material with an eye to future developments. And it is not a bad idea. The saving on upkeep may pay for future expansion of the house.

Those who want to build of brick at moderate cost will be interested in "The Harrisville," the "Home of the Week." This is a compact, well-designed dwelling, sturdy in character, offering possibilities for later additions.

Can Finish Attic Later
The plan shows four rooms on the first floor with a stairway to an unfinished attic that can eventually be turned into bedrooms. Headroom and light are gained for the second floor by a long shed dormer at the back and single dormers could be cut into the front roof at any time, if desired.

The outside dimensions of the house proper are 22 by 29 feet and an attached garage measures 9 by 18 feet, making the cubage approximately 14,700 feet over all.

A full cement basement allows a heater room and also laundry space that is located under the kitchen. Brick veneer walls to the ceiling line, change to claphboards above and a soldier course of brick makes a decorative band that seems part of the simple cornice design across the front. The modern entrance, with a claphboard hood, is centered between the two windows on the front and a leader is placed close to the corner at each end. Planting completes the feeling of strict balance that this crisp little house possesses.

Living Room at Front
The front door enters directly into the living room which is placed lengthwise on the front of the house. It is a nicely proportioned room and the openings are well spaced. One long wall is unbroken except for a door to the little inside hall, located close to the corner, leaving excellent wall space for furniture. The window at the side is deeply recessed by closets built out at each side of it and then arched over the top to match the arched opening to the dining room on the right.

Time Now to Clean The Furnace Blower

Owners of forced warm air heating systems should make certain that the furnace blower is inspected and cleaned at this season, advises the National Warm Air Heating and Air Conditioning Association. Like every operating mechanism, the blower requires a little attention annually in order to help retard wear and maintain peak performance.

The following blower maintenance suggestions are given by the association: Clean and oil the blower and its motor. Examine the condition of the belt drive of the blower and if it shows signs of excessive wear, replace it. Make certain that the belt tension is properly adjusted to eliminate slippage. Check the set collar on the blower shaft to see that there is no end play in this shaft. Clean the blower cabinet thoroughly, preferably with a vacuum cleaner.

Filters should not be overlooked when the blower cabinet is cleaned. Dust-clogged filters should be replaced with clean new filters. When replacing the filters make certain that they fit snugly so that there will be no appreciable air leakage around the filter edges.

Large Mirrors Useful For Children's Room

Mirrors are an attractive addition to any number of rooms in the house—the bathroom mirror for shaving and for toilette purposes; the powder room mirror which not only gives accurate reflections of the individual looking into the mirror but which seemingly adds spaciousness to what is usually a small room.

It is nice to have at least one full-length mirror in each bedroom. Even the children's room should have a full-length mirror so as to accustom young folks to neatness of person and of the room itself and pride in the appearance.

Repainting Tin Roof
Before repainting a tin roof, scrape old paint blisters and rust away with sandpaper and wipe the surface clean with turpentine.

Easier to Clean
Waxed woodwork cuts down cleaning. Rub spots that are handled often with a thin coat of liquid wax.

Attractive Finish For Pine Walls

A nice finish for a knotty pine paneled wall in a basement recreation room can be achieved by several liberal applications of a half and half mixture of raw linseed oil and turpentine.

One hour after each application wipe off the excess oil on the surface. Repeat the application after 24 hours, and give a third if necessary.

DDT Closet Lining
Cedar paper containing DDT has been developed as a lining for clothes closets and storage closets to protect against moths and other insects.

Thor Automagic Sink

— a sink - clothes washer — and a dishwasher combined; — and a garbage disposal unit designed to fit — if desired.

Smart Families Are Choosing the New THOR Automagic Sink....

• Because it enabled us to gain 100 square feet of living space when we built our home... gave us a finer, more livable room arrangement.

• Because it permitted us to plan a modern, completely efficient work center instead of just another kitchen.

• Because it "flicks away" two of home-making's most laborious and time-taking tasks — washing clothes and washing dishes.

• Because it eliminates trucking up and down the basement stairs on washday... and no more messy rinsing in old-fashioned laundry tubs.

• Because the total cost of the Thor Sink — combining clothes and dish washer, was so much less than buying and installing a clothes washer, a dish washer and a sink as separate units.

Harold—I don't want to go to heaven: I want to go with you and mother.

A local woman, who had been bitten by a dog, was receiving treatment from her physician. After treating her, the doctor said:

Doctor—It's possible you may be carried off by hydrophobia madam, so it may be well to note down your last wishes.

The lady busies herself with pen and paper for a long time until finally the doctor remarked—

Doctor—That's a rather long will you're making isn't it?

Patient—Will, nothing. I am just making a list of the people I'm going to hate.

Asked what he did before he was married, a fellow townsman replied: Anything I wanted to.

A steward came to the presiding elder and asked for a preacher.

Elder—How big a man do you want?

Steward—I do not care so much about his size, but I want him to be big enough to reach heaven when he is on his knees.

Most of us can easily stop smoking—we've done it so many times.

ger against the people's democratic regime. He spread false information according to Vatican instructions and threatened those who were faithful to the regime with excommunication. "At the orders of the bishops of Prague, Bratislava, and Buda, he sent pamphlets to Slovakia, he read anti-state pastoral letters in church and collected economic information which he sent to the intelligence service of the Vatican."

"He did not announce that a military priest wanted to flee the country. He is guilty of abusing his high position, high treason and espionage against the republic." At yesterday's session, the two who confessed guilt to high treason were identified by the news agency as Abbot Bohumil Vit Tadjovsky of the monastery at Zelva, in central Bohemia, and Abbot Augustin Machalka of the monastery at Nova Roca. Abbot Machalka also was said to have confessed to spying for the Vatican.

The news agency reported that "foreign and domestic news correspondents" attended the trial. However, representatives of western news agencies were refused admittance yesterday because, they were told, no more tickets were available.

The news agency said pleas of innocence were entered by Francis Sihan, provincial (director) of the Order of Jesuits in Czechoslovakia; Jesuit Adolph Kalpr and Stanislaw Bayrak, of Nova Roca. Frantisek Mikulisek, a Jesuit in Prague, reportedly pleaded "partially guilty."

Czechoslovakia's first mass trial of priests comes after more than two years of conflict between the Communist-led government and the Roman Catholic hierarchy. The fight by the church has been led by its highest dignitary in the country, Archbishop Josef Beran, who for the past 10 months has not left his palace overlooking Prague.

He retired to seclusion there after Communist hecklers drove him from his throne in Prague's St. Vitus Cathedral last June. The archbishop claims the government has interfered him; the government has said he can leave the palace any time he wants to.
